

Robinsons Electric

The family firm with the personal touch

Helping you get hi-tech

IN this fast-moving world where technology moves at a great pace and shops seem to come and go in the blink of an eye it is reassuring to see an old friend down in Kirkland by the Kendal Parish church.

Robinsons Electric are still giving excellent advice and guidance so that you get the technology you need that will serve you, rather than overpower you.

Under the leadership of Barry Speak, along with support of engineer and ideas man David Holliday, Robinsons Electric still provides the full package from shop to your front room. Barry said: "It is no use having a room full of technology if you have no idea how to use it. We provide a personal service and have the depth of knowledge that you don't always get with the supermarkets and with internet firms."

Robinsons Electric will guide you through the initial and sometimes frustrating period until you gain your confidence.

"David, the technical whizz kid, is on hand with further advice when needed," said Barry. "Getting him to shut up is another matter!"

With 27 years under their belt Robinsons Electric are the last family-run, independent electrical retailer in Kendal.

Barry added: "With so many internet businesses operating a 'here today, gone tomorrow' policy how comforting to have a bit of stability in the old grey town."
