

Happy birthday to Robinson's

NOW celebrating its silver anniversary – local, family-run company Robinson's Electric has been established in the area since as far back as the 1950s.

Business partners and brother-in-laws Phil Punt and Barry Speak teamed up to buy the Lancaster branch back in 1987 when Colin Robinson, the son of the original owner moved on to new ventures. Until then Barry had worked in the Merchant Navy whilst Phil had always worked in the industry, having worked for Sanyo since he left the Navy back in 1977.

The Kirkby Lonsdale branch was then added to the portfolio with the most recent branch in Kendal coming along in 1990 to complete the current portfolio.

Now, as a member of a major independent European buying group, the company has access to all the major electrical brands at very competitive prices, whilst still being a small enough family business to deliver the personal touch we all like to receive.

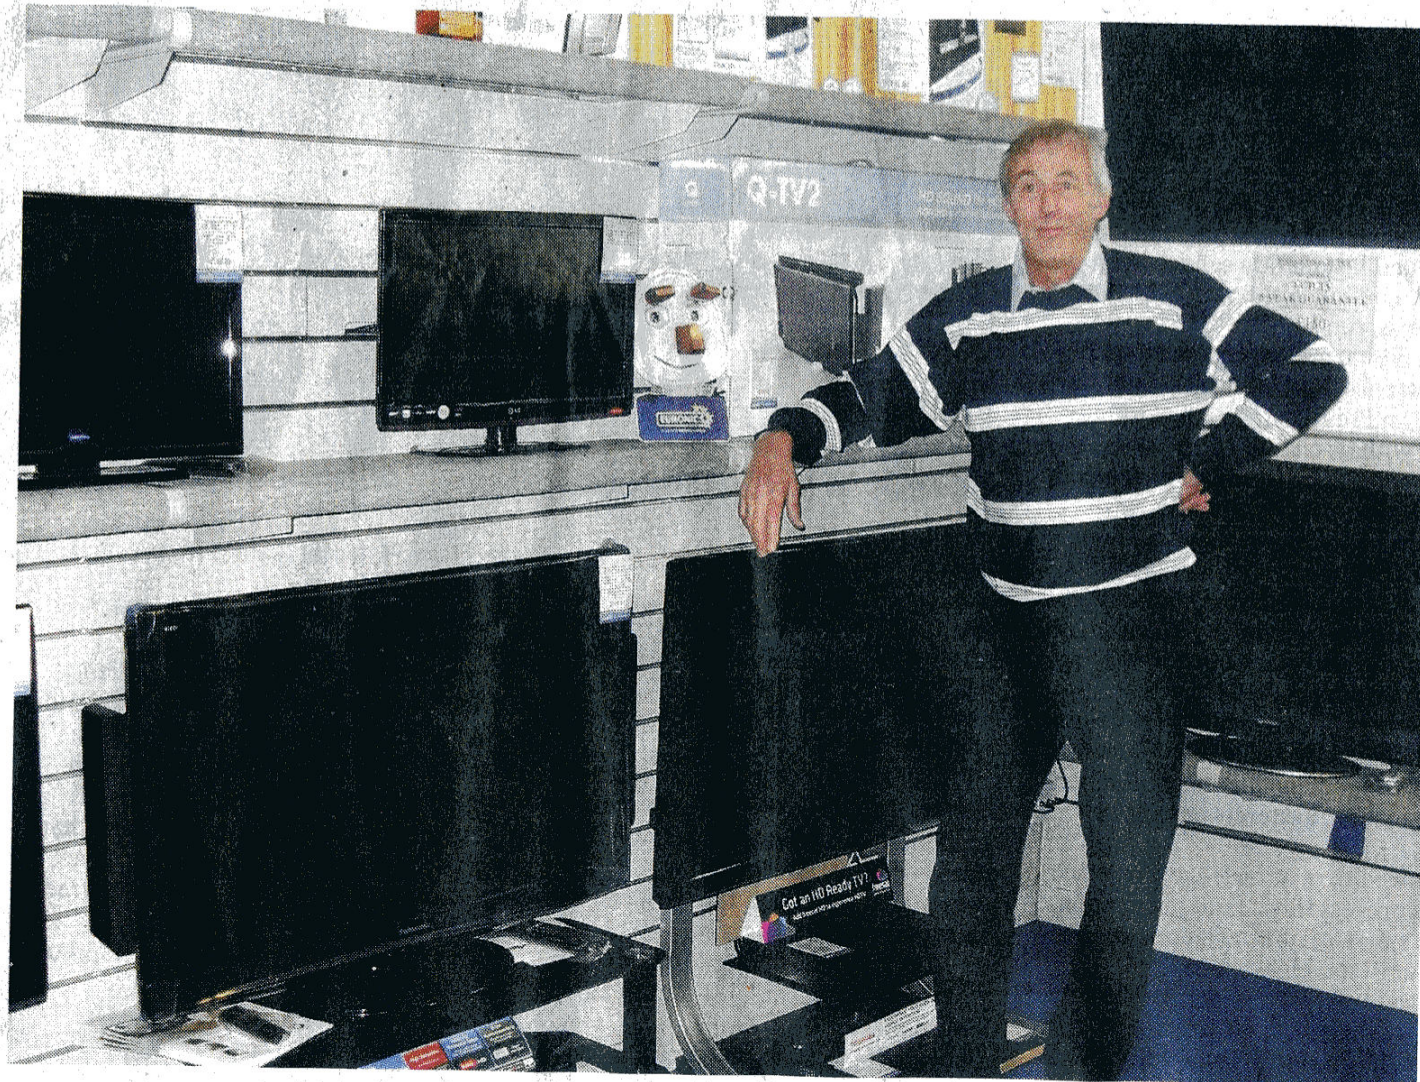

Whilst being specialists in the hotel television and commercial markets, they also have a thriving commercial and domestic division, meaning they are able to service everyone's needs.

And to back it all up they have their own fully-qualified team of engineers and workshops to make sure your equipment is looked after to the very highest of standards.

Throughout their time in business, Robinson's have seen changes aplenty in this dynamic and ever-changing hi-tech world, and it's no mean feat for the team to keep up with all the developments in this fast-moving industry.

But that's exactly what they've done, and just one look at their comprehensive website – www.robinsonselectric.co.uk – shows you just how well they have looked after their customers over the years. Numerous testimonials and letters of thanks from happy customers are a joy to read and leave you safe in the knowledge that you are indeed in safe hands.

In recognition of the support and loyalty that has been given to them by their customers both old and new, Phil and Barry together with Phil's son Graham and longstanding employee David (Doc) Holliday would like to thank all their customers past and present for their support and look forward to the next 25 years!
